Johnson spoke with ESPN's Bill Simmons about his proposed return to the NBA and who might succeed him in Los Angeles, during the third episode of ESPN's The Bill Simmons Podcast. "I would have to choose LeBron James," Magic told Simmons. "I think LeBron would play better with me, in terms of leadership and the superstardom." Magic believed James needed a player like him to help him make a transition from the Miami Heat to the Los Angeles Lakers. James was traded from Miami to the Cleveland Cavaliers before he began a historic stretch of success with the Miami Heat in the early 2000s. The Lakers famously failed to trade for James in the summer of 2010 when he was a free agent. Magic would have known this, as he helped recruit and convince James to play in Cleveland. Johnson is one of the game's most beloved players to ever play the game of basketball, but his demeanor was seen as a major drawback during his time in Los Angeles. The combination of five championship rings,
